Determined To Fly

“堅持必成功”

Over the years, the demand for pilots has increased significantly, and is predicted to continue to escalate. However, the opportunities in Hong Kong remain slim. There are a few well-known airlines that offer cadet programs, but the selection process is vigorous and competition remains high.

These cadet programs in Hong Kong are only one of the many ways to becoming a professional pilot. For those who do not choose this path, what other options are there? Australia and America common places to receive training, but which path suits you more? What are the differences in training between these two locations?

Future pilots, come join us on a seminar and bring your questions along!
